

Chance to fly with top airlines in the world

You can realise your dreams at Inter-Excel.

AIM high to travel far – that's one tagline aspiring pilots, flight attendants will live by.

Inter-Excel Advisory Sdn Bhd is the pioneer airline training and placement centre in South-East Asia with a proven track record.

It has trained hundreds of students who are now flying high with various international airlines including Malaysia Airlines, Singapore Airlines, Qatar Airways, Korean Air, Royal Brunei, AirAsia, among others.

Hilary Miranda, the director of the company says, "The airlines are one industry that never dies."

The company specialises in outsourcing career opportunities in the aviation industry, specifically for flight attendants.

It has devised a special preparatory course to cater to hopefuls with a penchant for travel but who are unsure if they measure up.

The students will also undergo a mock interview, from which the panel will assess their weaknesses and strong points.

Most aspiring flight attendants are aware that the competition is tough in this industry. Candidates hoping to land a job with airlines regard this company as a one-stop centre to prepare themselves.

Malaysians also score on being highly adaptable, hospitable, and possessing language proficiency.

■ Those interested can write-in to: resume@excelmalaysia.com. There will be new intakes and an Open Day in Kuala Lumpur on Jan 5.

For instance, The Skytrax has voted Malaysia Airlines (MAS) as having the World' Best Cabin Crew from 2001 to 2004.

Many international airlines are taking notice that MAS has a top notched world-class cabin crew.

Lately, the national airline of UAE has once again appointed Inter-Excel to organise a major recruitment in Kuala Lumpur and Singapore.

Inter-Excel is calling on eligible candidates with or without airline experience to apply as the latter is conducting an interview drive in early January 2006.
